Guys,

Attached the questionnaire and the HT agreement in Spanish with some notes from the end-user. Tomorrow morning I have a call with Karel Coors to discuss the details of the Demo next week in Quito, Ecuador.

Thanks,

Ciao Eduardo,

Let me try to give you some additional comments:

Yes, You can send him the one-page Demo document now, so that they understand what you are going to do. There is not much in this document and it is OK to send it prior to the NDA.

Regarding the demo, there are some occasion in which we perform demo (to Government End-Users) without NDA, for example during the ISS conference. So you could possibly do the demo to this End-User prior to the NDA. Below I give you some more arguments to Karel / End-User for them to sign:

In case they do not sign the NDA, we would do the standard demo (like in a conference) but if the end-user asks questions that we consider should be covered under a confidentiality agreement we won't be able to answer them...Similarly, if the end-user wants to ask questions more related to his operations, this is the same problem. So the main argument is that if we have the NDA signed before the meeting, the demo will be more than just a demo...It will be a complete interaction with the end-user to the benefit of the end-user. Another argument is that it is a standard practice and all our end-user are signing this mutual one.

If you need it, Marco and I could speak and insist with Karel today. Let us know.

Worse case scenario: no NDA is signed prior to the demo, you do the standard demo and you use your common sense if a question would require a confidentiality support. We have to be careful in the way we say « sorry I can't answer because we have no NDA :-) » ...What I would suggest is that at the beginning of the demo, when the meeting starts, your Partner must state that because no NDA was signed, there could be some questions that won't be able to be answered, or some features that won't be shown....It is way better to say it before...Agree with the Partner to say it, or you should say it, with humility :-). Maybe they decide to sign it before.

Just sharing best practices :-)

Philippe

Thank you Philippe.

I will help them fill out the questionnaire.

But since they are reluctant to sign our NDA I don't know if I can proceed with the Demo and share the Demo documents.

Should we wait for the NDA to proceed?

Hola Eduardo,

We have the NDA translated to Spanish (see attached).

For your information: in fact we don't have a NDA in Spanish (we don't sign agreement in Spanish), we have an NDA with both English and Spanish version in the same document. Which is not technically the same :-). The one that prevails is the English version. The Spanish translation is to help the understanding of our Spanish speaking end-users and prospects.

Regarding the questionnaire, you can tell him that this will help you in adapting your presentation/demo to what is really of interest to them. So this is to their benefit. If not, you can take advantage of your physical presence during the meeting, to go through the questionnaire and fill it with them (with the support of your partner). The questionnaire is also important before we do a configuration for any future Budgetary Proposal. So sooner or later they will have to do it.

Regarding the documents to prepare for your demo, have you sent them the one-page demo document that explains what we will show and what we need? This can be useful as well.

I hope this helps you

Mucha suerte !

Hi Eduardo

according to the client the presentation for 9th July is confirmed.

They are reluctant to sign the NDA as it is in English and they do not understand it protects both parties.

I do not see them be quick about filling in the questionnaire. I am quite sure a lot of information will be put on the table July 9, however.

Let me know when you wish to talk. On Skype I am karelcoors

Hello Karel,

The earliest date for the demo would be any day from next week starting on Tuesday 30th of June to Friday 3rd of July, or the following week from the 6th to 9th of July.

Just select the most suitable date for you and end-user and let us know in advance so we can arrange the trip.

After you send us the NDA we will send you a document describing our demonstration and its requirements. For now I can tell you that I would use a cabled internet connection and a TV/projector.

Ciao Eduardo,

Let me try to give you some additional comments:

Yes, You can send him the one-page Demo document now, so that they understand what you are going to do. There is not much in this document and it is OK to send it prior to the NDA.

Regarding the demo, there are some occasion in which we perform demo (to Government End-Users) without NDA, for example during the ISS conference. So you could possibly do the demo to this End-User prior to the NDA. Below I give you some more arguments to Karel / End-User for them to sign:

In case they do not sign the NDA, we would do the standard demo (like in a conference) but if the end-user asks questions that we consider should be covered under a confidentiality agreement we won't be able to answer them...Similarly, if the end-user wants to ask questions more related to his operations, this is the same problem. So the main argument is that if we have the NDA signed before the meeting, the demo will be more than just a demo...It will be a complete interaction with the end-user to the benefit of the end-user. Another argument is that it is a standard practice and all our end-user are signing this mutual one. If you need it, Marco and I could speak and insist with Karel today. Let us know. Worse case scenario: no NDA is signed prior to the demo, you do the standard demo and you use your common sense if a question would require a confidentiality support. We have to be careful in the way we say « sorry I can't answer because we have no NDA :-) » ...What I would suggest is that at the beginning of the demo, when the meeting starts, your Partner must state that because no NDA was signed, there could be some questions that won't be able to be answered, or some features that won't be shown....It is way better to say it before...Agree with the Partner to say it, or you should say it, with humility :-). Maybe they decide to sign it before. Just sharing best practices :-)

Ciao Eduardo,

Let me try to give you some additional comments:

Yes, You can send him the one-page Demo document now, so that they understand what you are going to do. There is not much in this document and it is OK to send it prior to the NDA.

Regarding the demo, there are some occasion in which we perform demo (to Government End-Users) without NDA, for example during the ISS conference. So you could possibly do the demo to this End-User prior to the NDA. Below I give you some more arguments to Karel / End-User for them to sign:

In case they do not sign the NDA, we would do the standard demo (like in a conference) but if the end-user asks questions that we consider should be covered under a confidentiality agreement we won't be able to answer them...Similarly, if the end-user wants to ask questions more related to his operations, this is the same problem. So the main argument is that if we have the NDA signed before the meeting, the demo will be more than just a demo...It will be a complete interaction with the end-user to the benefit of the end-user. Another argument is that it is a standard practice and all our end-user are signing this mutual one.

If you need it, Marco and I could speak and insist with Karel today. Let us know.

Worse case scenario: no NDA is signed prior to the demo, you do the standard demo and you use your common sense if a question would require a confidentiality support. We have to be careful in the way we say « sorry I can't answer because we have no NDA :-) » ...What I would suggest is that at the beginning of the demo, when the meeting starts, your Partner must state that because no NDA was signed, there could be some questions that won't be able to be answered, or some features that won't be shown....It is way better to say it before...Agree with the Partner to say it, or you should say it, with humility :-). Maybe they decide to sign it before.

Just sharing best practices :-)

Regarding the questionnaire, you can tell him that this will help you in adapting your presentation/demo to what is really of interest to them. So this is to their benefit. If not, you can take advantage of your physical presence during the meeting, to go through the questionnaire and fill it with them (with the support of your partner). The questionnaire is also important before we do a configuration for any future Budgetary Proposal. So sooner or later they will have to do it.

Regarding the documents to prepare for your demo, have you sent them the one-page demo document that explains what we will show and what we need ? This can be useful as well.

As agreed, I'm sending attached the questionnaire for the client; please ask them to fill out, it will be very useful to understand their needs. Once you end me the NDA signed by the customer, I will provide you also the solution description.

I put in cc my colleague Eduardo Pardo, an HT Field Application Engineer based in Colombia; he will be involve for arranging the presentation/demonstration in Quito.

Best Regards, Marco

Ciao Eduardo, Let me try to give you some additional comments:

You can send him the one-page Demo document now, so that they understand what you are going to do. There is not much in this document and it is OK to send it prior to the NDA.

Regarding the demo, there are some occasion in which we perform demo (to Government End-Users) without NDA, for example during the ISS conference. So you could possibly do the demo to this End-User prior to the NDA. Below I give you some more arguments to Karel / End-User for them to sign:

In case they do not sign the NDA, we would do the standard demo (like in a conference) but if the end-user asks questions that we consider should be covered under a confidentiality agreement we won't be able to answer them...Similarly, if the end-user wants to ask questions more related to his operations, this is the same problem. So the main argument is that if we have the NDA signed before the meeting, the demo will be more than just a demo...It will be a complete interaction with the end-user to the benefit of the end-user. Another argument is that it is a standard practice and all our end-user are signing this mutual one.

If you need it, Marco and I could speak and insist with Karel today. Let us know.

Worse case scenario: no NDA is signed prior to the demo, you do the standard demo and you use your common sense if a question would require a confidentiality support. We have to be careful in the way we say « sorry I can't answer because we have no NDA :-) » ...What I would suggest is that at the beginning of the demo, when the meeting starts, your Partner must state that because no NDA was signed, there could be some questions that won't be able to be answered, or some features that won't be shown....It is way better to say it before...Agree with the Partner to say it, or you sh

For your information: in fact we don't have a NDA in Spanish (we don't sign agreement in Spanish), we have an NDA with both English and Spanish version in the same document. Regarding the questionnaire, you can tell him that this will help you in adapting your

If not, you can take advantage of your physical presence during the meeting, to go through the questionnaire and fill it with them (with the support of your partner). The questionnaire is also important before we do a configuration for any future Budgetary Proposal. So sooner or later they will have to do it.

Ciao Eduardo, Let me try to give you some additional comments:

You can send him the one-page Demo document now, so that they understand what you are going to do. There is not much in this document and it is OK to send it prior to the NDA.

Regarding the demo, there are some occasion in which we perform demo (to Government End-Users) without NDA, for example during the ISS conference. So you could possibly do the demo to this End-User prior to the NDA. Below I give you some more arguments to Karel / End-User for them to sign:

In case they do not sign the NDA, we would do the standard demo (like in a conference) but if the end-user asks questions that we consider should be covered under a confidentiality agreement we won't be able to answer them...Similarly, if the end-user wants to ask questions more related to his operations, this is the same problem. So the main argument is that if we have the NDA signed before the meeting, the demo will be more than just a demo...It will be a complete interaction with the end-user to the benefit of the end-user. Another argument is that it is a standard practice and all our end-user are signing this mutual one.

If you need it, Marco and I could speak and insist with Karel today. Let us know.

Worse case scenario, no NDA is signed prior to the demo, you do the standard demo and you use your common sense if a question would require a confidentiality support. We have to be careful in the way we say « sorry I can't answer because we have no NDA :-) » ...What I would suggest is that at the beginning of the demo, when the meeting start, your partner should say that because an NDA was not signed, there could be some questions that won't be able to be answered, or some features that won't be shown....I think it is better to say it before...

Just sharing best practices :-)

Ciao Eduardo, Let me try to give you some additional comments:

You can send him the one-page Demo document now, so that they understand what you are going to do. There is not much in this document and it is OK to send it prior to the NDA.

Regarding the demo, there are some occasion in which we perform demo (to Government End-Users) without NDA, for example during the ISS conference. So you could possibly do the demo to this End-User prior to the NDA. Below I give you some more arguments to Karel / End-User for them to sign:

In case they do not sign the NDA, we would do the standard demo (like in a conference) but if the end-user asks questions that we consider should be covered under a confidentiality agreement we won't be able to answer them...Similarly, if the end-user wants to ask questions more related to his operations, this is the same problem. So the main argument is that if we have the NDA signed before the meeting, the demo will be more than just a demo...It will be a complete interaction with the end-user to the benefit of the end-user. Another argument is that it is a standard practice and all our end-user are signing this mutual one.

If you need it, Marco and I could speak and insist with Karel today. Let us know.

Worse case scenario, no NDA is signed prior to the demo, you do the standard demo and you use your common sense if a question would require a confidentiality support. We have to be careful in the way we say « sorry I can't answer because we have no NDA :-) » ...What I would suggest is that at the beginning of the demo, when the meeting start, your partner should say that because an NDA was not signe

Ciao Eduardo, Let me try to give you some additional comments:
You can send him the one-page Demo document now, so that they understand what you are going to do. There is not much in this document and it is OK to send it prior to the NDA.

Regarding the demo, there are some occasion in which we perform demo (to Government End-Users) without NDA, for example during the ISS conference. So you could possibly do the demo to this End-User prior to the NDA. Below I give you some more arguments to Karel / End-User for them to sign:

In case they do not sign the NDA, we would do the standard demo (like in a conference) but if the end-user asks questions that we consider should be covered under a confidentiality agreement we won't be able to answer them...Similarly, if the end-user wants to ask questions more related to his operations, this is the same problem. So the main argument is that if we have the NDA signed before the meeting, the demo will be more than just a demo...It will be a complete interaction with the end-user to the benefit of the end-user. Another argument is that it is a standard practice and all our end-user are signing this mutual one.

If you need it, Marco and I could speak and insist with Karel today. Let us know. Worse case scenario, no NDA is signed prior to the demo, you do the standard demo and you use your common sense if a question would require a n

Hi Philippe,

With this email I would like to introduce you to Karel Coors.

Karel lives in Ecuador and has been a strong partner for Providence in that country. Karel has got some great relationships into the right user groups and has been a excellent partner for us.

Karel has been approached by one of his customers and I think there is a business opportunity for Hackingteam in this.

I hope that with this introduction you both can connect together on a short notice and hopefully create some good business from this.

Ciao Eduardo, Let me try to give you some additional comments:
You can send him the one-page Demo document now, so that they understand what you are going to do. There is not much in this document and it is OK to send it prior to the NDA.

Regarding the demo, there are some occasion in which we perform demo (to Government End-Users) without NDA, for example during the ISS conference. So you could possibly do the demo to this End-User prior to the NDA. Below I give you some more arguments to Karel / End-User for them to sign:

In case they do not sign the NDA, we would do the standard demo (like in a conference) but if the end-user asks questions that we consider should be covered under a confidentiality agreement we won't be able to answer them...Similarly, if the end-user wants to ask questions more related to his operations, this is the same problem. So the main argument is that if we have the NDA signed before the meeting, the demo will be more than just a demo...It will be a complete interaction with the end-user to the benefit of the end-user. Another argument is that it is a standard practice and all our end-user are signing this mutual one.

If you need it, Marco and I could speak and insist with Karel today. Let us know.

Hola Eduardo,

For your information: in fact we don't have a NDA in Spanish (we don't sign agreement in Spanish), we have an NDA with both English and Spanish version in the same document. Which is not technically the same :-) ...The one that prevails is the English version. The Spanish translation is to help the understanding of our Spanish speaking end-users and prospects.

Regarding the questionnaire, you can tell him that this will help you in adapting your presentation/demo to what is really of interest to them. So this is to their benefit. If not, you can take advantage of your physical presence during the meeting, to go through the questionnaire and fill it with them (with the support of your partner).

The questionnaire is also important before we do a configuration for any future Budgetary Proposal. So sooner or later they will have to do it. Regarding the documents to prepare for your demo, have you sent them the one-page demo document that explains what we will show and what we need ? This can be useful as well.

Ciao Eduardo, Let me try to give you some additional comments:

You can send him the one-page Demo document now, so that they understand what you are going to do. There is not much in this document and it is OK to send it prior to the NDA.

Regarding the demo, there are some occasion in which we perform demo (to Government End-Users) without NDA, for example during the ISS conference. So you could possibly do the demo to this End-User prior to the NDA. Below I give you some more arguments to Karel / End-User for them to sign:

In case they do not sign the NDA, we would do the standard demo (like in a conference) but if the end-user asks questions that we consider should be covered under a confidentiality agreement we won't be able to answer them...Similarly, if the end-user wants to ask questions more related to his operations, this is the same problem. So the main argument is that if we have the NDA signed before the meeting, the demo will be more than just a demo...It will be a complete interaction with the end-user to the benefit of the end-user. Hola Eduardo,

We have the NDA translated to Spanish (see attached).

For your information: in fact we don't have a NDA in Spanish (we don't sign agreement in Spanish), we have an NDA with both English and Spanish version in the same document. Which is not technically the same :-) ...The one that prevails is the English version. The Spanish translation is to help the understanding of our Spanish speaking end-users and prospects.

Regarding the questionnaire, you can tell him that this will help you in adapting your presentation/demo to what is really of interest to them. So this is to their benefit. If not, you can take advantage of your physical presence during the meeting, to go through the questionnaire and fill it with them (with the support of your partner).

The questionnaire is also important before we do a configuration for any future Budgetary Proposal. So sooner or later they will have to do it.

Regarding the documents to prepare for your demo, have you sent them the one-page demo document that explains what we will show and what we need ? This can be useful as well.

I hope this helps you

Ciao Eduardo, Let me try to give you some additional comments:

You can send him the one-page Demo document now, so that they understand what you are going to do. There is not much in this document and it is OK to send it prior to the NDA.

Regarding the demo, there are some occasion in which we perform demo (to Government End-Users) without NDA, for example during the ISS conference. So you could possibly do the demo to this End-User prior to the NDA. Below I give you some more arguments to Karel / End-User for them to sign:

In case they do not sign the NDA, we would do the standard demo (like in a conference) but if the end-user asks questions that we consider should be covered under a confidentiality agreement we won't be able to answer them...Similarly, if the end-user wants to ask questions more related to his operations, this

Hola Eduardo,

We have the NDA translated to Spanish (see attached).

For your information: in fact we don't have a NDA in Spanish (we don't sign agreement in Spanish), we have an NDA with both English and Spanish version in the same document. Which is not technically the same :-). The one that prevails is the English version. The Spanish translation is to help the understanding of our Spanish speaking end-users and prospects.

Regarding the questionnaire, you can tell him that this will help you in adapting your presentation/demo to what is really of interest to them. So this is to their benefit. If not, you can take advantage of your physical presence during the meeting, to go through the questionnaire and fill it with them (with the support of your partner).

The questionnaire is also important before we do a configuration for any future Budgetary Proposal. So sooner or later they will have to do it.

Regarding the documents to prepare for your demo, have you sent them the one-page demo document that explains what we will show and what we need? This can be useful as well.

I hope this helps you

You can send him the one-page Demo document now, so that they understand what you are going to do. There is not much in this document and it is OK to send it prior to the NDA.

Regarding the demo, there are some occasion in which we perform demo (to Government End-Users) without NDA, for example during the ISS conference. So you could possibly do the demo to this End-User prior to the NDA. Below I give you some more arguments to Karel / End-User for them to sign:

For your information: in fact we don't have a NDA in Spanish (we don't sign agreement in Spanish), we have an NDA with both English and Spanish version in the same document. Which is not technically the same :-) ...The one that prevails is the English version. The Spanish translation is to help the understanding of our Spanish speaking end-users and prospects.

Regarding the questionnaire, you can tell him that this will help you in adapting your presentation/demo to what is really of interest to them. So this is to their benefit. If not, you can take advantage of your physical presence during the meeting, to go through the questionnaire and fill it with them (with the support of your partner). The questionnaire is also important before we do a configuration for any future Budgetary Proposal. So sooner or later they will have to do it.

Regarding the documents to prepare for your demo, have you sent them the one-page demo document that explains what we will show and what we need ? This can be useful as well.

I hope this helps you

Ciao Eduardo, Let me try to give you some additional comments:

You can send him the one-page Demo document now, so that they understand what you are going to do. There is not much in this document and it is OK to send it prior to the NDA.

Regarding the demo, there are some occasion in which we perform demo (to Government End-Users) without NDA, for example during the ISS conference. So you could possibly do the demo to this End-User without the NDA.

What I suggest you to comment to Karel, is that, in case they do not sign the NDA, we would do the standard demo (like in a conference)

Hola Eduardo,

We have the NDA translated to Spanish (see attached).

For your information: in fact we don't have a NDA in Spanish (we don't sign agreement in Spanish), we have an NDA with both English and Spanish version in the same document. Which is not technically the same :-). The one that prevails is the English version. The Spanish translation is to help the understanding of our Spanish speaking end-users and prospects.

Regarding the questionnaire, you can tell him that this will help you in adapting your presentation/demo to what is really of interest to them. So this is to their benefit. If not, you can take advantage of your physical presence during the meeting, to go through the questionnaire and fill it with them (with the support of your partner).

The questionnaire is also important before we do a configuration for any future Budgetary Proposal. So sooner or later they will have to do it.

Regarding the documents to prepare for your demo, have you sent them the one-page demo document that explains what we will show and what we need? This can be useful as well.

I hope this helps you

Mucha suerte !

Hi Eduardo

according to the client the presentation for 9th July is confirmed. They are reluctant to sign the NDA as it is in English and they do not understand it protects both parties.

I do not see them be quick about filling in the questionnaire. I am quite sure a lot of information will be put on the table July 9, however.

Regarding the questionnaire, you can tell him that this will help you in adapting your presentation/demo to what is really of interest to them. So this is to their benefit. If not, you can take advantage of your physical presence during the meeting, to go through the questionnaire and fill it with them (with the support of your partner).

The questionnaire is also important before we do a configuration for any future Budgetary Proposal. So sooner or later they will have to do it.

Regarding the documents to prepare for your demo, have you sent them the one-page demo document that explains what we will show and what we need ? This can be useful as well.

I hope this helps you

Hi Eduardo

according to the client the presentation for 9th July is confirmed. They are reluctant to sign the NDA as it is in English and they do not understand it protects both parties.

I do not see them be quick about filling in the questionnaire. I am quite sure a lot of information will be put on the table July 9, however.

Let me know when you wish to talk. On Skype I am karelcoors

The earliest date for the demo would be any day from next week starting on Tuesday 30th of June to Friday 3rd of July, or the following week from the 6th to 9th of July.

Just select the most suitable date for you and end-user and let us know in advance so we can arrange the trip.

After you send us the NDA we will send you a document describing our demonstration and its requirements. For now I can tell you that I would use a cabled internet connection and a TV/projector.

Regarding the questionnaire, you can tell him that this will help you in adapting your presentation/demo to what is really of interest to them. So this is to their benefit. If not, you can take advantage of your physical presence during the meeting, to go through the questionnaire and fill it with them (with the support of your partner). The questionnaire is also important before we do a configuration for any future Budgetary Proposal. So sooner or later they will have to do it.

Regarding the documents to prepare for your demo, have you sent them the one-page demo document that explains what we will show and what we need ? This can be useful as well.

End user asked me what the earliest date is that Mr Pardo can visit us in Quito for the life demo.

Eduardo: please advise what requirements you have to be able to do the demo.

Hi Karel,

it was a pleasure talk to you.

As agreed, I'm sending attached the questionnaire for the client; please ask them to fill out, it will be very useful to understand their needs. Once you end me the NDA signed by the customer, I will provide you also the solution description.

I put in cc my colleague Eduardo Pardo, an HT Field Application Engineer based in Colombia; he will be involve for arranging the presentation/demonstration in Quito.

Best Regards, Marco

this is a new group to be formed by Ministerio del Interior (MDI) for the use of a number of agencies active in policing. The focus is on traffic social networks. Since MDI is behind this, it will be the contracting partner.

I reviewed the Partner Policy Document and have no problem with it. I can sign the NDA so we can move forward.

Then we develop the opportunity step by step.

Hi Peter,

You will have a long life :-)...I was just about to send you an email asking if you had the address confirmation from the Dutch Police...

I'm copying to your email Marco Bettini (Head of Sales), Alessandro Scarafile (Head of Field Application Engineers) and Lorenzo Invernizzi (HT's FAE).

Both Marco and Lorenzo will be participating to the meeting and demo. We anticipated that there will be technical questions so, yes, I can confirm that Lorenzo has the experience to answer technical questions about our capabilities: he has already performed complete installation of our solution and also full training to end-users in different countries and cultural environments. He is by the way this week performing an installation and training this week :-).

Could you tell us how many people and technical people you anticipate in the meeting ?

Regarding the other unit meeting, if we consider the time to travel from one location to the other, the set-up time (at least 15mn if everything is ready: cables LAN, projects), and the time sufficient to do the presentation, the demo and the Q&A, I think it is too short to do the 2nd meeting on Monday morning. All the more if the meeting with the Dutch Police is at 12.45.

What we had planned to do is to remain one more day, and to do the second meeting on the 7th in the morning or afternoon. Is it possible ? Alternatively we could do the 6th, but in the late afternoon after the Dutch Police demo, so that we have no time constraint to stop and run...7th is definitely better.

Hi Peter (Sakkers), nice hearing from you. And thank you in advance for helping us in the logistics and pick-up arrangements. Marco will send you the flight details and be in contact with you.

I'm convinced that there is a real need in the Netherlands for such a capability and that we will impress them :-)

Enjoy Asia and see you soon.

Hi Phillipe,

I had a meeting today with the National Police regarding the demonstration on Monday the 6th.

We are expected to turn up at 12:45 at a secret location (we get the details this Thursday) for the meeting and demonstration. They will make sure all the right setup requirements are present.

They specifically requested that a deep technical expert is present as they will have a lot of question. Their words : not a salespitch but a real capability overview.

Another unit (military intelligence) requested if they could do a separate meeting/demo in our office in the Netherlands in the morning of the 6th. Will that be possible? How long is your setup time?

It will take a hour to drive from our office in Haarlem (Stolbergstraat 9 in Haarlem) to the requested location.

I will not be present as I am leaving to Asia this Sunday. But Peter Sakkers (in CC) will be at both meetings to support you.

Please let me know flight details etc, so Peter can make arrangements to pick you up etc.

We are expected to turn up at 12:45 at a secret location (we get the details this Thursday) for the meeting and demonstration. They will make sure all the right setup requirements are present.

They specifically requested that a deep technical expert is present as they will have a lot of question. Their words : not a salespitch but a real capability overview.

Another unit (military intelligence) requested if they could do a separate meeting/demo in our office in the Netherlands in the morning of the 6th. Will that be possible? How long is your setup time?

It will take a hour to drive from our office in Haarlem (Stolbergstraat 9 in Haarlem) to the requested location.

I will not be present as I am leaving to Asia this Sunday. But Peter Sakkers (in CC) will be at both meetings to support you.

Please let me know flight details etc, so Peter can make arrangements to pick you up etc.

It seems the interest is real, so fingers crossed and hopefully we will move forward to a positive result.

Best regards,

Peter Stolwerk Co-Owner and COO Providence Group

Hi Peter,
The earliest flight is an Easyjet arriving at Schipol at 8h10. So, since your office is in Haarlem, close to the airport, I think we could make it for 9.00 am in your office. If we are able to schedule everything in one day, we will leave the same night and travel with no extra luggage (but the demo chain :-))
Let's try to do it

Hi Peter,

You will have a long life :-)...I was just about to send you an email asking if you had the address confirmation from the Dutch Police...

I'm copying to your email Marco Bettini (Head of Sales), Alessandro Scarafile (Head of Field Application Engineers) and Lorenzo Invernizzi (HT's FAE).

Both Marco and Lorenzo will be participating to the meeting and demo. We anticipated that there will be technical questions so, yes, I can confirm that Lorenzo has the experience to answer technical questions about our capabilities: he has already performed complete installation of our solution and also full training to end-users in different countries and cultural environments. He is by the way this week performing an installation and training this week :-).

Could you tell us how many people and technical people you anticipate in the meeting ?

Regarding the other unit meeting, if we consider the time to travel from one location to the other, the set-up time (at least 15mn if everything is ready: cables LAN, projects), and the time sufficient to do the presentation, the demo and the Q&A, I think it is too short to do the 2nd meeting on Monday morning. All the more if the meeting with the Dutch Police is at 12.45.

What we had planned to do is to remain one more day, and to do the second meeting on the 7th in the morning or afternoon. Is it possible ? Alternatively we could do the 6th, but in the late afternoon after the Dutch Police demo, so that we have no time constraint to stop and run...7th is definitely better.

Hi Peter (Sakkers), nice hearing from you. And thank you in advance for helping us in the logistics and pick-up arrangements. Marco will send you the flight details and be in contact with you.

I'm convinced that there is a real need in the Netherlands for such a capability and that we will impress them :-)

Enjoy Asia and see you soon.

Philippe
